

“Having Something Good to Say”

By: Jack Muellerleile

Too many people have chosen not to mature attitudinally beyond the “It’s not fair” middle-teen years of their life. They spend much of their time bitching and moaning about almost everything.

You surely know the type. Ask them “How’s it going?” They normally reply with something on the order of “Terrible, terrible, terrible”. This person always has something negative to say about every subject imaginable. They are not fun to be around...for very long. Ergo, they become very lonely people and then complain about that.

Good rule to follow: If you have nothing good to say, remain silent.

Another good rule: Think ahead and have something good to say.

Another good rule: Get over it & get on with it.
